ABSTRACT

The 1976 edition contains references to all New York State history-related works which were either published, completed, or in progress during 1976. Works are included which presented new knowledge on any aspect of the history of New York State. Entries include books, leaflets, graduate theses, and journal and magazine articles. Newspaper and newsletter features are not included. All entries are categorized under 15 topics: American Revolution; architecture, art and literature; biography; documentary; economics; education; family history and genealogy; government, law, politics, and society; guides, finding aids, and bibliographies; local studies; miscellaneous (underwater archaeology, cookbooks); racial and ethnic studies; religion and church history; transportation; and urban studies. Each entry provides information on title, author, publisher and address, page length, notice of illustrations or charts, and appendices or bibliography if included. Some entries are annotated. There are two major sections in the bibliography: the first lists documents which were completed in 1976, and the second lists those in progress during 1976. Concluding sections are an appendix of periodical literature on N.Y. State history and an author index. (Author/AV)

RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS: THE 1976 EDITION

It has been twenty-five years since the State Historian, Albert B. Corey, first sought to provide a comprehensive listing of new research and writing covering the general field of New York State History. From 1952 to 1968, an annual bibliography titled "New York State and Local Historical Research in Progress " was prepared by the State Historian's office and was printed in the July issue of NEW YORK HISTORY magazine. In 1969, Dr. Thomas Felt, then of the Office of State History, expanded the compilation, and the State Education Department published it separately as RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS IN NEW YORK STATE HISTORY. The bibliography appeared four times under that title between 1969 and 1972.

In 1976, the State's historical activities were concentrated in the New York State Museum which demonstrated its concern for the research and writing of state and local history by reviving the annual compilation of new titles and works in progress. Accordingly, the Division of Historical Services, successor to the Office of State History, has prepared this volume. RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS will be compiled annually by the Division of Historical Services and is issued during the summer following the end of each calendar year. RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS is a reference tool for those interested in the research and writing of state and local history. It is distributed to public, private, college, and university libraries, and to historical organizations in and out of New York State. A conscious effort has been made to make this edition definitive for 1976. Comprehensiveness and accuracy are the primary goals of this and of all future volumes. However, the success of such a project is largely dependent on the cooperation of publishers, readers, scholars, teachers, and writers of state and local history. Since these groups are also the most likely users of this bibliography, the editors take this opportunity to extend their thanks for past kindnesses and to appeal to their readerships for advice and assistance in the compilation of future volumes. All inquiries, comments, and suggestions are welcome and should be addressed to:

The 1976 edition of RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS is intended to encompass all New York State history-related works which were either published, completed, or in progress during calendar 1976. Eligible for inclusion were works which presented new knowledge or new viewpoints on any aspect of the history of New York State. Entries typically took the forms of books (more than 100 pages), booklets, leaflets (fewer than ten pages), graduate theses (doctoral and master's), other typescripts available for examination, and journal and magazine articles. Reprints and revised editions of out-of-print works have been included while newspaper and newsletter features have not. Included for the first time are family history and genealogical studies.

This bibliography was compiled by distributing detailed questionnaires to university presses and to other publishers of books and periodicals relating to New York history, to college History department faculty members in and out of the State, to the more than 1,200 locally appointed historians in the State, to the mailing list of the College Conference on New York State History, to research centers and historical organizations in and out of New York State, and to scholars of New York history as well. The response was extremely satisfying as the New York State historical community submitted over a thousand completed forms and made many valuable suggestions.

For the first time, RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS has been divided into two major sections: "Published in 1976" --any New York-related work with a publication or completion date of 1976; and, "In Progress" -- any New York-related research and/or writing (including manuscripts accepted for publication or in press) underway during calendar 1976. Within each major section, entries are grouped topically and then are alphabetized according to author or by subject where there is no author named. Although editors and compilers are acknowledged, their names have been subordinated to the subject in the alphabetical listing.

The principal finding aid for this volume is the index. Every person, place, and thing in each entry except for dates, publishers' names and addresses, and places of publication is indexed. Index references are to entry numbers and not to pages. The basic bibliographical unit in this volume is the entry which gives the particulars of publication and includes a brief annotation where appropriate for each publication or research project. Each of these entries has been assigned a unique letter-number designation called an entry number. Capitalized topic symbols (AR, L, M, for example) refer to the published section, while lower-cased symbols (ar, l, m, for example) refer to the In Progress section (see page 99).

A typical entry consists of an entry number; the author's surname, first name, and middle initial; the full title of the work as it appears on the title page (or article title and periodical or parent volume); place of publication (New York State is understood); the publisher's name and address; reprint or special edition information; number of pages; notice of illustrations, maps, charts, notes; or footnotes; appendices; bibliography; and an index, all of which appear in that order. Most entries have an annotation which describes the contents or provides essential information not contained in the facts of publication section.

Abbreviations have been utilized and periods eliminated wherever possible. Non-standard abbreviations are listed on page ix. Frequently cited magazines and journals also have been abbreviated. These abbreviations are listed on page x. The facts of publication including subscription information for frequently cited periodicals are listed in a special appendix section beginning on page 91. The volume numbers of these periodicals are found in the appendix and are not repeated in the text. The full citations for less frequently cited periodicals are found within each entry.

Publication of this volume could not have taken place without the best efforts of many worthy people. Denise Cashmere, researcher and assistant editor, spent a cold winter and a chilly spring conscientiously attending to a wide variety of essential tasks ranging from processing the large volume of mail and forms to indexing to actually typing the final copy. G. Glyndon Cole of Saranac provided much useful material on the "North Country." Ken Brock, Bruce Dearstyne, and John Leith of the State Archives; Jim Corsaro of the State Library; Tom Felt and Bill Polf of the NYSARBC; and Pat Mc Mahon, Paul Scudiere, and John Still, my colleagues in the Division of Historical Services, all provided assistance and advice and helped nurture the manuscript along to publication. These people have my sincere thanks.

This bibliography is designed for fundamental reliance on the index. Every person, place, and thing in each entry except for dates, publishers' names and addresses, and places of publication is indexed. Index references are to entry numbers and not to pages. Within each entry number, the letters refer to the topic section (see Table of Contents, page iii), and the numbers to the consecutively numbered entries within each section. Capitalized letter symbols denote a published work while lower-cased letters refer to research in progress. The Table of Contents (page iii) lists the topic symbols. For example, an index reference to D-4, indicates the fourth item in the published Documentary section (page 16). And, an index reference to g-10, indicates the tenth item in the Government, Law, Politics, and Society section of works in progress (page 77).
